I've seen the lilly bloom;
The lilly white and fan,
Imparing its perfume
To every breeze of air.

Then wither, droop and die, No more to charm the eye, Its beauty all had flown.

And I have often seen, That youth is but a flower! A fransitory scene, The vision of an hour. I've seen the cheek turn pale, The sparkling average,

The sparkling eye retire;
The powers of nature fail,
A parents hope expire. I've seen affection grieve
At nature's high beliest,
And sympathy relieve
The agonizing breast.

THE ADVENT.

Watchful sliepherds! watchful shepherds! Scattered o'er Judes's plains: Soft the state are glesming o'er you, feaceful rest, ye happy swains!

Fearless crop the verdant herbage, Flocks along the dewy ground; Or, to gentle slumber yielding, Rest till morning dawns are old.

But look! - what me me that wondrous star? How brillinity it at nea star! On the dark breast of dray night, It glows and burns well steady light, Go, follow out its holy flame.— Say, shepherds, leads it not to Bethlehem?

But no! - ye need not trace its way: Stay! in these verd or pastures stay! Rouse every heart and disten every earl What sicred notes are those we hear They echo round so sweet and clear! And swell upon the ravished ear!

They come! they come! the angel : hoirs! And Heaven each note of love inspires— Glory to Gof they sings Good will to men they brings And urknown bliss.

Joyful tidings: joyful tidings!
Ringing o'er Judea's plains;
Shepherd-/ well the infant Saviout
Ye adored with sweetust strains.

Richly shone Juden's pastures; Husic swelled in every sound; Glory echoed glory! glory! Where the new-born babe, they found, Ransomed sinner! ransomed sinner! Christwas boin to die for you. Ransomed sinner-ransomed sinner!

Join the soice of glory too. Christian Watchman,

-What is religion, in what does d what are its benefits? This it consist, and what are its benefits? This is an all important inquiry that has disturbed the brains of many wise men. It is a question, which, to our apprehension, is ve question, which, to our apprehension, is very plain and simple, although involved in impatery by theologians;—it presents itself in the winning attire of virtue—it is the connecting link between man and his God. On the second question we answer;—It is doing right out of reverence to God—As to its be nefit, (merely confined to this like) it transcends in sublimity our highest and most order to conception of excellences it was a particular to the conception of excellences it was a particular to the conception of excellences it was a particular to the conception of excellences it was a particular to the conception of excellences it was a particular to the conception of excellences it was a particular to the conception of excellences it was a particular to the conception of excellences it was a particular to the conception of excellences in the conception of excellen dote for every evil, for every vicis-itude; for every wound and every dart, to which critical man is subjected in this conflicting world.

If we gently raise the veil, that dividing line between time and eternity, the sublimity and unparalleled majesty, resulting from pure religion in the heart, forbids description, we are mute with the surpassing glories, that shine into our conception of happiness and boon, and will not walk on a path so decked on every side with joys, and so delightfully shaded with palm trees?—Who, we say, has so perverted those noble powers imparted to them for transcendant enjoyment, as not to desire a communion with the Father of our spirits and not to find a glorious stay "amie the wreck of matter and the crush ofworlds?
